Napoleon's Review

Napoleon is a pig in a farm where every animal thinks in the progress. Firstly, he has the ideology of an absolute control by tyranny, being the best way to control the other animals, also, he thinks that only him wants to hold the power. He describes himself as the only rightful leader and the superior animal above all. Also, he thinks that he would be the leader because he is the smartest animal in the farm.

Napoleon sees a lot of positive things of the farm, therefore, the things that he likes the most are that they are producing more food and wealth as well as the farm isn't being controlled by humans. However, there are things that he doesn't like of the farm, these things are the lazy animals, Snowball and unsubsordination.

Although Napoleon has his personal life. In his free time he likes to train the puppies, drink alcohol and eat human food. He considers his friends all the dogs, the puppies and the pigs except Snowball.

Finally, he thinks that making trade with humans is the best way to survive and to grow as the windmill, that is the best option to progress in the future

He considers the dogs his friends.
